The University of Miami Miller School of Medicine, Department of Surgery and Division of Oral & Maxillofacial Surgery is once again offering their annual Academic Day Continuing Education Program. The Jackson Memorial Hospital residents will present 20 minute abstracts in the morning based around the theme “Challenging Diagnoses/Challenging Cases”. This year’s Mark L. Wein Memorial Lecture will be delivered by our own former Tumor and Reconstructive Fellow and Faculty who is now the Chairman of OMFS at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, Tennessee. Dr. Eric R. Carlson. Dr. Carlson will present his lecture entitled “The Unique Challenges of Cancer in Children”.

COURSE DESCRIPTION AND OBJECTIVES:

This program addresses the needs of oral and maxillofacial surgeons as well as advanced general dentists in private and academic practice to obtain updated scientific and surgical information which is pertinent to their clinical practice. The educational format will consist of lectures with question and answer sessions as well as a panel discussion. Requirements for attendance at this program include a DDS or DMD degree from an American Dental Association approved Dental School or its equivalent and either graduation from or current active enrollment in a dental resident specialty or dental school.

UPON COMPLETION OF THIS COURSE, PARTICIPANTS WILL BE ABLE TO:

- 1) Understand the recent advances and diversity in dental surgery and oral and maxillofacial surgery.
- 2) Diagnose, and participate in the treatment of cases of cancer in children.
- 3) Discuss and coordinate dental and oral surgical concerns with other treating physicians and dentists.
