Educational Committee • Distinguished Faculty
CONFERENCE DESCRIPTION
This is a three-day conference designed for medical oncologists, hematologists, radiation oncologists, surgical oncologists, physician assistants (PA), advanced registered nurse practitioners (ARNP), oncology nurses, registered pharmacists, pharmacy technicians, and radiation therapists. General practitioners (internal medicine and family medicine) will have the benefit of review standard of care and new developments in cancer management. Residents in training and fellows from these specialties are encouraged to attend.

This year, a depth discussion in immunotherapy for multiple tumor types will take place. Immunotherapy in Oncology is changing the landscape of therapy for different solid tumors such as lung cancer, bladder, kidney, melanoma, and others. Also, topics in solid tumors and hematological malignancies such as breast cancer, lung cancer, gastrointestinal (GI) malignancies, genitourinary (GU) cancers, gynecologic malignancies, head and neck cancers, melanoma, multiple myeloma, CLL and non-Hodgkin’s lymphoma, and myelodysplastic syndrome will be reviewed. There will also be a special session devoted to the area of supportive care in oncology, with emphasis on bone metastasis, malignant hypercalcemia, and management of chemotherapy, targeted therapy and immunotherapy-related side effects. The areas of focus for this conference will include the current standards of care in the treatment of all aforementioned malignancies and new developments in these areas of cancer care. There will be much emphasis on molecular diagnosis and individualization of cancer therapy based on molecular profiles. There will be reviews of new chemotherapeutic agents, new antiangiogenic agents and new immunotherapeutic agents.

Presentations from latest national (AACR 2016, ASCO 2016 and ASH 2016) and international forums (ESMO 2016 and WCLC 2016) meetings will be discussed and guidelines of cancer care will be emphasized. The participants in the meeting will have the opportunity not only to learn, review, and understand the state-of-the-art management in cancer care but also engage in personal interaction with our panel of experts in these subjects during our question and answer sessions.

CONFERENCE OBJECTIVES
Upon completion of this course attendees will be able to:
1) Understand the latest advances in chemotherapy, targeted therapy and immunotherapy options available for lung cancer, breast cancer, GI malignancies, GU malignancies, melanoma, brain tumors, head and neck cancer as well as hematological malignancies including multiple myeloma, NHL, MDS, and CLL.
2) Evaluate the current standards of care in the treatment of a variety of solid and hematologic malignancies.
3) Discuss risks and benefits when combined modality of treatment (that includes radiation therapy and surgery) is delivered to patients who have localized malignant processes (i.e., NSCLC, head and neck, prostate cancer, and others).
4) Management of adverse events from the use of novel immunotherapy and targeted therapy agents.
5) Management of complications and symptoms induced by chemotherapy, immunotherapy or targeted therapy including nausea, vomiting, hematologic toxicities (e.g., anemia, neutropenia) and others.
